PALMER DEMANDS PRISON TERMS FOR PROFITEERS

Asks Congress to Widen Authority

Washington, Aug. 13.—Wider powers for the prosecution of food profiteers were asked from Congress today by Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer, who submitted to Senator Gronna of North Dakota, chairman of the Agriculture Committee of the Senate, a draft of amendments to the food control bill aimed to give him broader authority.

Extension of the act to apply to "wearing apparel and the containers in which food, feeds and fertilizers are sold" was urged by the attorney general. He also asked for the punishment by a fine of not more than $5,000 or imprisonment for not more than two years or both for those who restrict production of food.

Under the terms of the food control act, as it is now drawn, there are provisions which prohibit any restriction of food production, by manipulation or transportation, markets or any other means. The attorney-general contends that there is no power of punishment under the present bill, however, and hence his request for an amendment.

FOOD PRICES SLASHED.

The government made its first move today on its campaign of competition with commercial food dealers, sweeping reductions in the prices of army surplus foods to be sold direct to the American public beginning August 18 were announced by the War Department in a revision downward of its original quotations. This followed reductions of prices by commercial retail dealers since it was announced that the army surplus would be put on sale. When the department heard of these reductions it announced that the army prices would be cut and that this revision downward would be continued.

At the same time Postmaster-General Burleson sent the following notice to postmasters in connection with the sale of the food, which will begin August 18 and end August 29:

NOTICE TO POSTMASTERS.

MILLIONAIRES IN HUNT FOR LOST GIRL

TUGS RUSH TO AID OF U. S. SHIP

Million Dollar Cargo on Englewoods in Distress on English Coast

London, Aug. 13.—Help was rushed from Dover today to the American freighter Englewood, which reported by wireless that she was sinking off the Thames estuary.

Tugs which went to the aid of the Englewood from Harwich began towing her into the Thames River.

New York, Aug. 13.—The American freighter Englewood, 8,000 tons, was in distress off Block Island, near Point, England, said a cablegram received today by her owners, the Cosmopolitan Shipping Company.

The vessel was recently chartered from the United States Shipping Board. She was en route for Rotterdam, carrying a cargo valued at $1,000,000.

She was formerly the City of Englewood, and is owned by the Fort Lee Ferry Company of New York. She was built at Wilmington, Del., in 1906, and has a registered tonnage of 3,648 tons. She left New York July 26 for Rotterdam.

Search for Waif in Mountain Woods Near Lenox

Lenox, Aug. 13.—Millionaire Summer residents and native woodsmen joined today in a search of the fastnesses of Rattlesnake Mountain for six-year-old Julia Gaffney, one of the "poor city children" being given a brief vacation at St. Helen's Home in Interlaken.

The child, whose home is on New York's lower East Side, has been lost since yesterday noon. The dense forest where she is supposed to be wandering is infested with bear, "bobcat" and the deadly reptiles which give the mountain its name.

The disappearance of the pale-faced city waif has caused a greater sensation in the Berkshire Summer colony than even the recent death of Andrew Carnegie at Shadow Brook.

Searching parties spent the night in the woods, directed by men experienced in woodcraft. One such party reported today hearing a faint sound that might have been the cry of a terrified child, but their answering shouts brought nothing but silence.

The little East Side miss had been one of the most popular of the fifty city children being given a breath of fresh air and a sight of the green at the Interlaken home.

She displayed considerable of the spirit of the explorer, preferring to wander about by herself. She was last seen in the "Deacon Palmer lot," near the edge of the forest, midway between Lenox and Stockbridge.

Those who saw her thought that she was the vanguard of one of the daily mountain climbing parties, and let her go.

The other children at St. Helen's Home are being closely watched to prevent other tragedies. The home was established by the late John C. Parsons in memory of a favorite daughter, and to bring a bit of happiness into the lives of just such children as the missing girl.

POLICE UNION IS DEBATED IN CONVENTION

City Councillor James T. Moriarty today assailed Police Commissioner Curtis on the floor of the Constitutional Convention for his stand against a Policeman's Union, and demanded that he cease his opposition.

In a brisk reply Commissioner Curtis, also a member of the convention, declared that he "would not recede from his position" and the statement evoked a storm of cheering in which men, delegates leaped to their feet and ran up the aisles of the convention hall.

"If the police commissioner of Boston wants to start something in this convention I warn him somebody else will finish it," declared Councillor Moriarty, rising in the attack.

The clash between the Boston officials occurred during a debate on an amendment offered by Delegate Albert B. Pillsbury of Wilmette which would prohibit employes of public service corporations from joining a union. The amendment was beaten by a 129 to 105 vote, a two-thirds vote in the affirmative being necessary to carry it.

Delegate Pillsbury in arguing for his amendment declared that the convention was called "for the sole purpose of passing the initiative and referendum not to consider other needed legislation." He charged union labor with "a worse tyranny than that of George the Third, and said that the unions "bled the public by the throat."

Following Councillor Moriarty's attack Commissioner Curtis was also allowed the privilege of the floor by unanimous consent. He said: "I do not refrain from discussing Boston police problems fully at this time because I am afraid of them, but because this is not the time or place. I wish, however, to state that I will stand where I am on this union issue, and defend my position more completely at the proper time."

GET $1,800 LOOT IN RAIDS

Stylish Couple Enter Dwellings in Cambridge, Waverley and Weston

A "bandit queen" heads the gang of burglars who, operating in the exclusive section of North Cambridge, Waverley and Weston, have within the last few hours obtained over $1,800 in loot.

A well dressed woman was seen by neighbors of Dr. John McGahan, a Waltham dentist, residing on Central avenue, Weston, to enter his home after forcing the back door lock.

She was accompanied, they say, by a man, and the pair drove up to the house in an automobile of a late model.

Among the places burglarized and the amounts of goods taken by the woman and her accomplice are the following:

Newport Chambers, No. 1775 Massachusetts avenue, North Cambridge, an exclusive apartment house, where the suite of Mr. and Mrs. L. Robert Wagner was stripped of $1000 in jewelry.

Home of Frank Brown, Cheney street, Waverley.

Home of Dr. John McGahan, Weston.

The woman displayed excellent taste in her selection of articles to carry away with her, according to the rightful owners and the police. From the home of Selectman Farnum was stolen a quantity of fine clothing, valued at over $250, while a quantity of money is missing from the Brown household.

At the Wagner suite, after thoroughly ransacking the place and selecting the finest silverware, the woman replaced the things she did want.

While the woman was stripping the home of Dr. McGahan, neighbors say, her male companion strolled about the grounds, acting as a lookout. She finally came from the dentist's home, carrying a large bundle. She and her companion got into the automobile and drove away rapidly. Goods to the amount of $500 was later found to be missing.

The police have found evidence that a "finger" was used to force entrance in most cases, and say that the woman must be an accomplished cat burglar experienced housebreaker. They claim to have a good description of her.

RAILROAD RADICALS BEATEN

Conflict Prolongs Strike, but Officials Say Peace Is Near

With New England's striking railroad shopmen marking time until Saturday, which is unofficially forecast as the end of the strike, and Walker D. Hines in Washington refusing to treat with the Chicago District Council, one of the bitterest fights the railroad men's union ever waged to keep their union free from radical influences has won out.

The fight between the radical and conservative elements of the railroad workers, the American was informed today, has prolonged the strike in New England.

Railroad shopmen have for some days been ready to return to work. Votes unofficially reported at local headquarters showed the general sentiment of the men was to return to work.

STRIKE TO END SOON.

But the international officers, against whose advice the local strike was called, have had to handle the situation with gloves. They fought to save the men from being controlled by the radical element and also to prevent Congress from using the international unions and their prestige.

That they have won out and that the strike will be called off the latter part of the week or the first of next was predicted by one of the international officers today.

The call for the strike originated among the radical element of the Chicago district council, the American was informed today. This radical element was closely identified with

CLAIMS LLOYD GEORGE DID MUCH TO LOSE WAR

London, Aug. 13.—Lieutenant-Colonel Charles Repington, military critic of the Morning Post, writing about the services of Sir William Robertson, says:

"No single individual did more to lose the war than Lloyd George between January, 1917, and March 21, 1918. He never told the country the facts. He won the general election on the false pretence that he won the war."

VISCOUNT GREY TO BE SPECIAL ENVOY TO U. S.

Announcement Cheered in British Commons; Ambassadorship to Be Vacant Till '20

London, Aug. 13.—Viscount Grey is being sent to Washington on a special mission, pending the appointment of a British Ambassador, which will not be made until early in 1920, Bonar Law, government leader, announced in the House of Commons this afternoon.

"I am sure the House will share the government's appreciation of Viscount Grey's patriotic action, which, in the opinion of all, will be of the highest value in influencing relations between the two countries," said Bonar Law.

The announcement was greeted with cheers.

The Evening News says that Viscount Grey will go to Washington in October.

The British post at Washington has been vacant since the resignation last Spring of Lord Reading.

The English newspapers have been urging the appointment to fill the post of ambassador, but was withholding action. They said they were in condition of ill health. Several other British statesmen were said to have been tendered the post but declined because they could not afford an expenditure in excess of $50,000 a year.

Viscount Grey is fifty-seven years old. He came into worldwide prominence in 1914, when as Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs he proposed a meeting of ambassadors of the European powers in an effort to prevent the world war. The proposal here, it is said, because of the attitude of Germany.

FIVE SCHOONERS LAND CATCHES AT BOSTON

More fish was landed today in Boston than at any time since the beginning of the fishermen's strike. Five schooners landed small catches, totalling 25,000 pounds, and twelve motor boats, manned by Italian fishermen, brought to the pier 10,00 pounds more.

The schooner Eleanora brought in 117 swordfish, averaging 200 pounds each when dressed. Her skipper refused a bid of 22 cents per pound, and held out for 25 cents, which has been the ruling price since the strike began. Other prices for fish were: mackerel 18 to 23 cents per pound, haddock 13, large cod 13, small cod 12 and flounders 4 to 9.

Motorman Thomas Keefe and Conductor Patrick Comers, with the assistance of male passengers, tied up the pole so that traffic could be resumed.

WOMAN GUILTY OF KIDNAPING OWN CHILD

Florence Patterson, twenty-two, of Worcester, today was found guilty by Judge Parmenter in the Municipal Court, following her own arrest, of George E. Patterson, four.

The woman was placed on probation until February 11, 1920, on condition that she return the child to its legal guardian, Josie Crimmons of No. 44 Chandler street, Boston.

According to the police, Mrs. Patterson separated from her husband in Vermont some time ago. The child was placed in the care of a guardian by the State Board of Charities at Montpelier, and the mother went to Worcester.

Last Thursday, the police charged, Mrs. Patterson went to the Chandler street home and found the child playing outside. She is said to have seized it and taking the boy in a limousine, drove to Worcester. She was arrested in that city by Special Officer Barry, the boy being left with friends of his mother.

SHORTAGE OF MATERIAL MAY CLOSE PLANTS

the L. W. W. element of the Middle West.

Through their influence many of the local workmen were induced to strike. Then came the repudiation of the international officers. The repudiation was made public on Saturday last. It was that national that made charges that the international officers had been bought off at the earliest moment by the railroad executives.

Meanwhile came the presidents request that the men return to work. Public opinion, crystallized in the form of a telegram to the president, favored staying out. The international officers, realizing the unfavorable sentiment, counseled returning.

SAVE UNION PRESTIGE.

But to save the prestige of union labor, too ready complainers was feared an indication of weakness. Radical influences had to be overcome.

That this has been worked out and that the conservatives are once more in the saddle and that the threatened strike of Sunday and the most obstinate centres, like Chicago and Atlanta, will come to an end, perhaps in a few days, was definitely predicted by the international officers today.

The first news of a break at Chicago came today when the Brotherhood of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul voted to return to work. This is thought to be the indicator of the return of the remainder of the strikers in that district.

Reports from Omaha, Neb., also stated that the striking shopmen in the territory between the Missouri River and the mountains had returned to work.

Although striking railroad shopmen returned to work in several New England centres, and hopes of a complete settlement by Saturday grew more optimistic today, uncertainty is facing a temporary paralysis as a result of the strike, it was declared.

Some modifications of the embargoes were put into effect by the railroads today, but there were slight comfort to manufacturers who are pinched for coal and for raw material, while their products are piling up in storage bosses. Some of these have no alternative than to shut down for the duration of the strike.

VOTE TO RETURN.

The Fitchburg shopmen employed by the Boston & Maine have voted to return to work. Two others after the Boston Federation of Labor men return to their jobs." In Worcester, the shopmen voted to return, making a similar decision that twenty-one of their number have already returned. In Manchester the air inspectors and repairmen have returned to work, but the boilermakers and machinists are still out, and declare they will not return before Saturday, at the earliest. Nineteen car inspectors and repairmen at Nashua also went back to work, while union officials there said today that the remaining twenty-two members of the mechanical force would return tomorrow.

More than 75 per cent of the Boston & Albany vote is already in, but no official announcement of its result or trend has been made. Many of the strikers say they believe that the Boston & Maine workers will vote to go back to work according to an agreement made by the federal managers of the Boston & Maine strikers will bow to the wishes of the majority and return to work.

MODIFY EMBARGOES.

There was no change in the situation in the Hillerich shops. The machinists in those shops will take a vote today on the question of returning to work. The Springfield men will also take a vote at that time.

Slight modifications of the freight embargoes on the New Haven and Boston & Maine offered little relief to industry. They did bring some assurance that a food famine would be averted.

The modifications of the Boston & Maine embargoes set forth that all perishable goods such as milk, ice and foodstuffs, might be transported from connecting points with other roads.

The New Haven announced a modification of its embargo on all freight to allow the transportation of food, livestock and their feed, ice, milk and supplies, including fuel, consigned to that road and the Central New England Railroad.

TERMS OF EMBARGO.

The embargo also is not applicable to freight originating at stations on the New Haven or Central New England roads for connections via Hartford, River and Mayberow, to westbound freight originating at stations on the two roads for moving via the New England Steamship Company; to eastbound freight moving via the New England Steamship Company from New York and Brooklyn destined to stations on the two roads; and to freight all-rail for and from New York City and Brooklyn destined or originating at stations on the two roads.

Passenger traffic conditions, for the most part, continued unchanged. Only the Boston & Albany was operating a suburban service, but officials declared it was impossible to determine whether the service might be operative tomorrow. The New Haven and the Boston & Maine operated no suburban trains.

Drop Parcels From Window in Food Sale Jam

Newton housewives crowded City Hall Annex at the opening of the government canned food sale today so that it was necessary for them to drop their packages out of the back window in order to make their way through the throng and reach the street after making liberal purchases. The goods were offered at the reduced prices announced by the government.

At Nonantum, Mayor Edward Ormsbee made the first sales at noon. At the Newton Centre School it was announced that food would be on sale from 9 to 11 a. m. and 4 to 8 p. m. each day.

ACTORS ORDERED TO PLAY ON IN BOSTON

Injunctions Restrain Them From Going on Strike; Stars Buy "Buddies"

Injunctions against Actors' Equity Association, restraining its officers and members from calling a strike of actors playing in two productions at leading theatres in Boston, were obtained from Judge Lawton of the superior Court by the managers of those theatres.

The action prevents the calling of a strike of members of either the "Sea Saw" company at the Tremont or "Buddies" at the Park Square Theatre.

Incidental to this action Manager Selwyn of the Park Square Theatre announced that "owing to his great interest in the joint stars in 'Buddies,' Donald Brian, Wallace Eddinger and Peggy Wood," he had agreed to sell them the entire production outright for $100,000 and that satisfactory security having been given him the play would be under their own management from today on.

STAMFORD THEATRE CLOSED BY STRIKE

Stamford, Ct., Aug. 12.—The Stamford Theatre, noted at this season of the year for its stock plays to be run on New York theatres the coming Winter, is closed indefinitely, owing to the actors' strike.

SOMERVILLE TO ORDER $15000 WORTH OF FOOD

The Somerville Aldermen at a special meeting adopted an order, sponsored by Mayor Charles W. Eldridge, appropriating $15,000 for purchasing food from the government, consisting chiefly of cans of corn, peas, tomatoes, bacon and corned beef.

FOOD PRICES SLASHED BY CITY

Army food prices, already quoted at figures which caused a tremendous rush on all the twenty-five municipal stations in the city yesterday, cleaning them out completely, have been further slashed it was announced today.

City Purchasing Agent Thomas J. Dawson today bought 250,000 pounds more of army canned goods for sale at cost in Boston. The goods were transported to the various distribution centres next Tuesday, and will go on sale at noon tomorrow.

It was found that not enough city trucks were available to transport the foodstuffs from the army stores in South Boston and private trucking was hired. This will necessitate the addition of a half-cent a can to the cost price.

The sale, also on the first day, will be conducted by the Women's Committee for Public Service, and the public will be subject to the same regulations regarding the amount of individual purchases.

Profiting by their experience of the first day of "community selling," the women in charge promise that the sale will be conducted more smoothly, and to the greater satisfaction of the public.

A reduction in the prices asked by the War Department was responsible for the change in the city price list, according to a statement issued by City Purchasing Agent Thomas J. Dawson. The following table shows the new price reductions:

NEW PRICES.

	Old price	New price
Bacon, 12-lb. cans	$4.32	$4.15
Corned beef, No. 1 cans	.30	.29
Corned beef, No. 2 cans	.58	.55
Corned beef, 6-lb. cans	2.00	1.75
Roast beef, 6-lb. cans	2.20	1.90
Corned beef hash, 2-lb. cans	.40	.37
Corn	.15	.08
Peas	.11	.09
Tomatoes, No. 3	.10	.11
Tomatoes, No. 10	.47	.33

Shortly after the announcement of the new scale of prices the Mayor's office issued another statement which added to the above prices a minimum for the cost of handling.

Local cold storage facilities for handling fish will probably prevent the city taking advantage of the offer of the Department of Agriculture to sell ten carloads of fancy frozen whiting to the city at five cents a pound.

This offer was made Monday by F. Ralph Duffy, assistant general manager of the United States Fish Company, in which he called attention to the fact that the purchase of this fish from the company and subsequent sale to Bostonians at cost would materially lower the cost of living to those people who favored fish.

PROVIDE SPECIAL CARS.

Special cars will be provided next week by the Railway Mail Service to haul food from the army supply base in South Boston to various points throughout New England for the government sale of canned goods direct to the public, it was announced today. Those cars will be used in order to provide quick delivery, according to Christopher Reising, superintendent of the Railway Mail Service, who has asked the Quartermaster's office to designate a track from the South Station to the army depot as a mail route. He has also asked the army authorities to arrange shipments in quantities so that the loading of the cars may be facilitated and reloading and delay avoided.

Wants Restaurants to Ask Five Cents an Ear for Corn

Why do Boston restaurants charge 15 cents an ear for sweet corn, when they pay only one cent and a quarter for it?

This question is asked by Edward Shattuck, secretary to M. H. Jones, president of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company. Mr. Shattuck believes that Boston restaurants should charge not more than five cents an ear and that in so doing would greatly increase the consumption, thereby helping Massachusetts farmers.

Because of the corn borer, Winfred Wheeler, State secretary of agriculture, has issued an order prohibiting the export of corn from the State.

Mr. Shattuck has fifteen acres of corn at Andover. In former years he sold his early varieties in Maine, securing a good price. He called up Mayor Peters' office today and suggested that the restaurants cut their prices in order that the corn now growing in Massachusetts shall not be wasted. He said that the price of best grade corn in the Boston market at 10 a. m. today was 75 cents for a box containing 60 ears.

Drive Against Sugar Hoarders Begins; Food Prices Fall in Chicago

Chicago, Aug. 13.—Warrants for the arrest of sugar hoarders—the first decisive move in an effort to reduce the cost of living in Chicago and the Middle West—are expected here today, according to E. A. Milroy, assistant district attorney, who has been weighing evidence against alleged sugar profiteers and hoarders.

"We are going to put the hoarders in jail and force them to 'Do Unforget' their stores," Milroy declared.

A direct drive is to be made against sugar dealers here, and the federal agencies will hammer down their prices still further.

Prices of many foods here has begun to take on the appearances of a rout, but the district attorney's office is going to continue gathering evidence for prosecuting of profiteers and hoarders.

Potatoes took another drop here, at South Boston to various points and butter went down 4c to the pound. Eggs dropped a penny on the dozen and poultry fell from 1 to 2 cents a pound. Heavy arrivals of fruit caused a drop in prices on the local market.

Reports received by the district attorney's office are to the effect that Chicago's cold storage houses were groaning under tons of "foodstuffs," while the public is being subjected to unwarranted high prices.

The reports tend to show the existence of a gigantic conspiracy between the packers and cold storage men, according to federal agents who made investigations.

Chicago's cold storage houses are controlled directly by the meat packers, Assistant United States Attorney H. R. Harris, jr., charges. Harris is in charge of the packers' inquiry during the absence of United States District Attorney Clifford, who is in Washington presenting evidence against the "Big Five" packers.

New York Meat Dealers' Profits Far Above the List of "Fair Prices"

New York, Aug. 13.—Retail meat dealers apparently are exacting big profits from New Yorkers, but grocers' prices on the whole are generally reasonable, a comparison of current market prices with a list of "fair prices" prepared by Food Administrator Williams indicated today.

The fair price for high-grade sirloin steak per pound, the price at which the food administrator asserts the dealer should make a reasonable profit, is 36 to 38 cents, but in the better residential sections meat dealers charge 45 cents. The fair price for smoked ham is 45 cents, but some dealers are charging as high as 65 cents. The "fair price" for bacon is 42 to 50 cents, but the retail dealers are charging 69 cents. The "fair price" for pork chops ranges from 44 to 48 cents, and the dealers charge 55 cents.

Potatoes are being sold at what the food commissioner calls a "fair price," between 4 and 5 cents a pound, and some stores are selling high-grade rice at a cent under the "fair price" of 15 cents.

SEEK SHARE OF WINANS ESTATE FOR SPANISH DANCER'S CHILDREN

DESERTION OF WIFE CHARGED

Heir to Millions Broke Her Heart by Eloping With Cousin, Another Spanish Beauty

Paris, Aug. 13.—The romantic story of a wealthy young American's love for a beautiful Spanish dancing girl, their marriage, his alleged elopement with his wife's pretty cousin, and the death of the dancer, broken-hearted and alone, was revealed here today at a conference of representatives of the millionaire Winans and Whistler families of Baltimore, Md., and Lenox, Mass., and a swarthy, wrinkled-faced old Spaniard, the father of the unfortunate beauty.

The conference marked the opening scene in an amazing international legal fight for the millions of Ross Revillon Winans, Baltimore and New York millionaire, whose son, Thomas George Winans, eleven years ago married Victoria Delgrado, daughter of an old tavern-keeper in the seaport town of Malaga, Spain, and famous as the "most beautiful girl in the Spanish peninsula."

SEEKS SHARE OF FORTUNE.

For his two grandchildren, the old tavern-keeper of Malaga is seeking to obtain a share of the fortune of their dead grandfather, estimated at between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000, a sum that would make them two of the wealthiest children in the world. He is striving to obtain the custody of the children at the same time.

The Winans and Whistler families are attempting to have the children given over to the care of their father, who now is living in Switzerland. At the conference today in a dingy little courtroom of the ninth Paris district, the old Spaniard opposed such action so strenuously that the decision finally was postponed overnight to let the Winans and Whistlers time to offer evidence that the children's father is a suitable person to take them in charge.

The story begins in the ancient Spanish town of Malaga twelve years ago, where old Delgrado kept a little tavern. His two daughters, Maria and Victoria, were locally famous as dancers and were called the most beautiful girls in all Spain. So persistent became the attentions of their many suitors that the old Spanish used to mount guard with a gun over the stairs leading from the drinking room of the tavern to the quarters where the girls and their mother lived.

Foreign tourists, attracted by stories of the charming dancers, visited the tavern. The Maharajah of Kapurtala, one of the most influential and wealthiest of Indian princes, fell violently in love with Maria, convinced the tavern keeper that his affection was not of a passing nature, and finally married the girl.

Their married life has been one of unalloyed happiness. Then young Winans, who had been touring Europe, arrived in Malaga, became infatuated with Victoria, and married her in 1905.

WINANS HEIRS BORN.

A boy and a girl were born to this marriage. A few years later, according to Arthur Valabrouze, the attorney for the children, the American began to neglect his wife, and eventually deserted her, eloping with her black-eyed cousin, Carmen Garcia, another noted beauty.

At first, the attorney says, Winans allowed her 2,000 pesetas monthly, but the payments became irregular, and the dancing girl was compelled to sell her jewels to save her babies from starvation.

Meanwhile, Ross Winans died in Baltimore, leaving a fortune. Victoria wrote Ross Winstler, a member of the family, claiming money for the support of herself and children.

The police commissary's office then attempted to induce the old Spanish couple to turn the children over to them and persuaded the Delgrados to take them to Paris last April.

Thomas was the only surviving son of the deceased Baltimore millionaire. His sister, Beatrice, married a prince, she died in 1907, but her children are said to have received their share of their grandfather's estate.

MAY AGAIN PERMIT SMOKING ON L TRAINS

Whether smoking by men on the Elevated trains, street cars and in the subways, which was abolished on the entire system by the company some time ago, should again be permitted will be discussed at a hearing to be given by the Boston Elevated authorities on Tuesday, August 19, at 2 o'clock, in the east wing of the State House.

Through a petition put in by the Boston Central Labor Union, containing thousands of signatures of those who believe in retaining the privilege of the past, which was first given on opportunity for expression of opinion as to whether the custom should again be permitted or the present embargo continued indefinitely.

SOME REASONS WHY THE BACK-TO-THE-SOIL MOVEMENT APPEALS TO IPSWICH

Will Veto Daylight Saving Repeal Bill Before Saturday

Washington, Aug. 13.—President Wilson will veto before Saturday the bill repealing the daylight saving law, it was stated authoritatively today. The ten days following passage of the bill, after which the President must either veto or approve if the measure is not automatically to become a law, expire at that time.

GIRLS TILL SOIL ON IPSWICH FARM

Ipswich, Aug. 13.—Farmerettes at the Sagamore Hill farm on the Summer estate of Richard T. Crane, the multimillionaire of Chicago, have proven quite an attraction to the summer colonists in this section.

This farm is run entirely by women. The head farmerette, Miss Mabel Turner of North Reading, and her young women helpers are making the farm pay at that.

Six acres now under tillage prove beyond doubt that the young ladies are keen agriculturalists, and the general condition of the crops forecasts an abundant harvest this Fall.

Sagamore Farm is in a measure an experimental school for young women, of whom there are ten at the present time. Those young women have shown marked aptitude for all phases of the work, from planting and cultivating, preparing the soil for planting, caring for the growing crops, as well as the care of the live stock on the farm, which consists of three cows, a couple of horses, several hundred chickens, a well-stocked rabbit farm, and several sheep.

The farmerettes work from early morn till the early evening, in convenient shifts of about eight hours each. They appear to enjoy their work, for which they receive a reasonable remuneration, together with the opportunity to study agriculture at first hand.

This is the second year the school has been in operation. Much of the early product has already been sold in the surrounding markets. This Fall a substantial potato crop is anticipated.

During the shortage of man power last year, owing to the war conditions the school was established.

The farmerettes at Sagamore Hill at present include Misses Harriet English of New Haven, Ct.; Alice Prescott of Jamaica Plain, Margaret Rooney of West Roxbury, Mary Williamson of Washington, D. C.; Carol Maynard of New York city; Ruth Bailey of Needham, Frances Norton of Hartford, Ct., Harriet Hilliker of Lynn, Mary Burgess of Plymouth and Mary Davis of Weston.

Heavy Rain Storms Due in Boston by Tonight

Heavy rain storms are moving northward from the Virginia Capes toward New England and will reach Boston late today or early this evening. This is the prediction of Weather Forecaster Smith, who adds that the storm will probably be the most severe of the season.

However, the rains are needed, according to the Weather Bureau Union, as New England has been cheated out of its usual amount of rainfall during August. Only about 25 per cent of the normal amount of moisture fell during the first part of the present month, and crops in various New England States have been reported as suffering from the drouth.

FLORENCE MOORE TO STAR IN NEW COMEDY

When Florence Moore visited Boston last season with "Dollar Bad-room and Bath," she was merely a "featured" player which means that the name of the attraction came first, and her own name followed. But this year the electric lights will be turned, as it were, for Miss Moore made A. H. Woods so much money that he rewarded the good fairy by building her a full-fledged star.

Consequently the electric lights on the Plymouth Theatre next Monday night, when this delightful comedienne will show us how she has fared with real "Florence Moore in 'Hesh-fast in Bed.'"

The new vehicle differs from most farces in that it is written in four acts rather than in the usual three, means that we are to have an additional act of Florence Moore's gentian as a fun maker.

DOLLAR LOPPED OFF NAHANT'S TAX RATE

The tax rate for Nahant this year will be $12 per $1000, a decrease of a dollar from last year, the selectmen announced.

The total valuation of the town increased $950 last year, the total being $4,126,821. The real estate valuation is $2,751,283, against $2,175,867 in 1918. There is no town debt to pay this year, as through the conclusion of the sewerage situation the town received enough money to liquidate the debt, therefore saving the interest charges.

Griffin and Police Inspector Daniel Dwyer of the local police are doing the rounds of the tenement district of Lawrence in an effort to secure evidence substantiating the charge that a widespread conspiracy has existed for some months among certain real estate owners involving a wholesale boost in the rents.

In numerous instances where property has changed hands new owners have boosted the rents out of reason. It is stated by a committee from the Tyers and Firemens' Union, which are pushing the case against the rent hogs.

Safe Deposit Hints

For a long time people had a general idea that there was little or no difference between Safe Deposit Boxes, that it mattered little whether they took a Safe Deposit Box in one place or another.

But the experiences of the continental cities during the great War have made a great many persons wake up to the fact that there is a difference, a tremendous difference. When the test comes it means a great deal whether or not your Safe Deposit Box is in a FIRST-CLASS Safe Deposit Vault that has spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in the construction, equipment and maintenance of its Safe Deposit Vault Department.

The Commonwealth Trust Company vaults, in all respects, comply with the standard set by experts. But renters in them have the comfort of knowing they are as safe from loss as human ingenuity and experience can make them.

CAPE COD MAN CLAIMS HE CAN CURE NEURITIS

Wellfleet, Aug. 13.—A religious healer whose power finds fair rival that of Hudson, the English healer, has been discovered in the person of Edward Dudley Powers, a local cobbler.

A prominent Boston business man in coming there when Powers had treated and cured him, had sent a number of patients to the white healer or neighboring cities, and many of both residents and visitors are now for the healer.

Powers is a powerfully built man of less than middle age, with a high forehead, a fine, piercing brown eye, and a strong, clean-cut face of the typical Yankee mould.

"I don't like to talk about myself," he explained to a reporter, "I would rather tell you of the Marquis of Carabbas or Count Fosco. Or, if you prefer, would tell you of my wife, of whom I say you would be glad to meet for the first time. Here is what happened to me.

FRIENDS ARE GRATEFUL.

Powers showed the reporter a number of letters from townspeople and others, who declared that they had been benefited by his methods.

"What is my method? That is a hard question to answer. Is it hypnosis, or chiropractic, osteopathy or osteology. All I can say is that it is a power which God has given and stored itself within me. I feel this strength so strongly at times that it becomes so great of late that I am afraid to shake hands with persons, lest they crush their fingers in mine.

"Feel it?" he queried, "it's a sort of magnetic force. I can't explain it. Where did I get it? What hands with all this power? I, who have been a barber for years, and had occasion only to use scissors?

WORKS WITH DOCTORS.

"The two doctors here in Wellfleet have been most cordial in their attitude towards me. What a perfect harmony with each other and members of the Congregational church.

"I believe I am going to have discovered a cure for cancer, so I can say positively that I never treated a case of that kind at the first visit. I expect to remain in this city always here and then I expect to go to Florida for the winter.

Powers was engaged in farming in the Middle West, a Texas cattle baron, before he came East, and he has been in connection with many big business enterprises. He has now invested in property in the village to the house forming one condition.

INCREASES ALIMONY OF BROOKLINE WOMAN

Judge Lewis in the equity session of the Superior Court today increased from $25 to $30 a week the allowance for temporary alimony to Mrs. Cora Jones, who is living in an apartment hotel on Huntington avenue. They were married in Mississippi, and have since lived in Hartford and Brookline. They spend the Winter months at the Copley Square hotel.

Mr. McSweeney is to be in this city for the purpose of giving information to the people here in connection with the subject in question.

In the first article to appear Sunday in the Boston American on the side of Ireland's cause, Mr. McSweeney will answer the following day will appear Frank P. Walsh, former chairman of the United States Commission on Industrial Relations, in an article entitled "Why Ireland Should Be Free and the League of Nations." Thursday, the Irish question will be discussed by Judge Julian W. Mack, of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, and Friday Samuel Untermyer, of New York, will write on the subject, "Why Ireland Should Be Free and Why She Will Be Free." Mr. Untermyer will write with a set of articles, completing the series of articles, which will appear in the Boston American every Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Friday.

When it was decided to conduct a drive for the Irish victory fund in Boston, he was selected by Judge Daniel F. Cohalan as one of the most essential leaders of the movement. Mr. McSweeney was selected as a member of the advisory committee for Boston and has been the directing genius behind the movement in Greater Boston.

He is a national officer, representing the Commonwealth upon the National Council of the Friends of Irish Freedom; is in close touch with President De Valera, and was principally responsible for the latter coming to Boston. He is said to be in close touch with the Irish cause than any other person in Boston.

Police, Take Notice! Paris Skirts to Be Shorter

Paris, Aug. 13.—Americans will not be shocked by the bareback display from the gayest Parisian dancing resorts, but the police may have something to say about the substitution of the "Apache" costume for the conduct of American visitors, according to a decree of Paris magistrates.

FISH STRIKE IS STILL FAR FROM SETTLEMENT

Men Said to Fear They Will Be "Double Crossed" by Big Employers

Settlement of the fish strike, which was followed to have been practically agreed upon last Monday, appeared today to be as far off as at the time of the conference on the first of July, when striking fishermen as a whole refused to ratify the agreements reached on Monday.

Officers of the fishermen's union have already called three special meetings to discuss the terms of settlement, which set out that the men's wages shall be 33 1/3 per cent of the gross stock, less fuel, ice and provisions, and because all the employers have not signed the agreement.

Most of the fishermen it was learned today are willing to settle quite a number already have gone to work on merchant vessels, while others are working along similar lines.

Those who have not sought work are those who are still in funds following their earnings during the war period. Some of them earned as high as $3,000 during 1918.

There will be another conference tomorrow at the Federal Building, at which it is hoped to secure the signatures of the Gorton-Pew Company of Gloucester and of the Boston Fish Pier Company, to the agreement of last Monday.

SENATOR FRANCE FAVORS SHOP COMMITTEE

Capital and Labor Must Co-operate to End Unrest, He Declares

Washington, Aug. 13.—Labor unrest, which is now evident in the United States, may be alleviated by greater representation for labor in industry, Senator France of Maryland declared in a statement today. He took pains to make it clear that he did not believe that any radical steps would help the situation, nor did he believe in the destruction of capitalism.

"Closer cooperation between capital and labor would allay unrest, Senator France said.

"The American laboring man is tired of being a machine and a drudge," Senator France said. "He needs incentive and more personal interest in his work."

Such committees would do much toward enabling labor the representation that is necessary, according to Senator France. Committees of labor meeting with capital to discuss the work of a factory, would give the laboring man a realization that he is a part of the industry and make him feel that he is playing an important part, Senator France believed. This plan has been tried with great success in Great Britain, he added.

Senator France warned that there was no need for confiscation of property or steps similar to those taken in Russia to satisfy labor, but that closer cooperation between employers and employes would reach results which would be of great benefit in bringing labor to a realization of its great share in the industries of the nation. Wage demands would be less if labor were given a greater voice, Senator France believed.

The Plumb plan was strongly opposed by Senator France. It would not allay unrest, he said, because it would call for government subsidy or a class.

Reed Refuses to Be Bossed by State Committee

Washington, Aug. 13.—Senator Reed of Missouri has issued a statement defying the Democratic State committee of Missouri for [illegible] in endorsing the League of Nations and insisting upon the senator giving it his support.

"I was not elected to office by state committee, but by the people of Missouri," the Senator's statement reads. "My campaign was not conducted by the present state committee, for, if it had been, I am sure that my fortune and the fortunes of my associates on the ticket would have been wrecked."

Senator Reed adds that he intends to go to Missouri soon to let the people know more about the League of Nations and at the same time give some attention to this attempt of the State committee to boss a party."

CARMEN OF BAY STATE TO VOTE ON INCREASE

Dissatisfied With War Labor Board Award of Six Cents an Hour, Says Vahey

"The men on the Bay State Street Railway are dissatisfied with the 12 per cent. increase in wages granted by the War Labor Board, and will hold a meeting soon to discuss what action they are to take," James H. Vahey, counsel for the men, declared today on his arrival from New York.

"There has been no talk of strike as yet," Mr. Vahey said, "but the men feel that the increase of six cents an hour is too little. I do not know what action will be taken. The joint conference board will decide what is to be done when it meets. This board consists of representatives from each of the Bay State lines."

Employes of the Bay State declared at a recent hearing in the Federal Building that they were entitled to the same wages as are now being paid to employes of the Boston Elevated, namely 62½ cents an hour. Their work is harder than the "L," they insist. The 12 per cent. increase granted by the Labor Board will give them 51 cents an hour instead of 45.

Chairman Loring of the trustees of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway, formerly the Bay State, made the following statement today regarding the increase:

"This award will increase the wages of our employes almost $1,000,000 the first year, and how the money can be raised is a most serious problem.

"Investigations made by the National War Labor Board showed that the average cost of living since July 1, 1918, had increased 12 per cent., therefore it awarded the men a similar increase in wages.

"Statistics just published by the National Industrial Conference Board show that the cost of living has increased 71 per cent since 1914. In the same period the wages of conductors and motormen on the Bay State system have been increased 80½ per cent.

"The War Labor Board made its decision retroactive to June 3, involving back pay to the Bay State employes of $170,000.

"Under the new home rule plan of operation the entire increase will have to be borne by the car riders in the taxity districts. Fall River's share will be approximately $50,000, Lowell's $110,000, Lynn's $100,000, Brockton's, $100,000, and other cities proportionately.

"The trustees fear that this large increase in wages will prevent fares from being reduced in the near future, and probably will compel the abandonment of 200 more miles of poor paving track."

SIGNS TO DIRECT AUTOISTS ON RIGHT ROUTE

State Will Post Boundaries of Towns and Cities Under New Plan

James W. Sohan, Massachusetts Highway Commissioner, states that the bill enacted into law by the last Legislature, authorizing the commission to erect signboards at all boundaries of cities and towns throughout the State, will soon be carried into execution.

The erection of these signboards, indicating boundary lines, on the main highways of the State, will fill a long-felt want on the part of Massachusetts autoists. Heretofore, despite the use of road maps, the tourist often found himself far off his course because of the lack of signboards and, after arriving in the centre of a town, was obliged to double on his tracks because of mistaken identity of the town.

The erection of the new signboards will remove this difficulty. The new posts will be made of cement, and the signs probably of the enamelled metal type now used by the State, with raised letters, will indicate plainly the names of adjoining cities and towns.

Mr. Sohan says that Massachusetts needs to do a lot of work in posting signs to direct autoists. Many of the smaller towns throughout the State have done practically nothing in respect to the erection of such boards at boundary lines and highway junctions.

It is remarkable how many persons are driving cars who never seem to have heard that courtesy of the road at least demands that some signals be given before turning to left or right or stopping, or even slowing down, when those that there are accepted signs but do not use them properly.

How often you notice signals being given by occupants of both the front and rear seats and generally the signals are opposite. In most cases where a turn is to be made you will see a hand on the side which certainly is confusing.

While there are no set signals which have been determined by law, motorists have formulated a set which have been very satisfactory and are as follows:

In slowing down or stopping, the arm is extended out and somewhat below horizontal. This indicates to the driver behind that the car is coming to a halt or is reducing its pace to such an extent that he must be careful to reduce his own speed correspondingly.

In turning to the left, the hand is simply held out horizontally. The driver behind can then see to the right and pass by the car as it turns off, without loss of time or confusion.

In turning to the right, the beckoning motion is best because it cannot be misinterpreted very well. It has become a habit with a great many drivers to make use of this signal and it works very well.

BAR PASSENGERS FROM JITNEY RUNNING BOARD

Lawrence, Aug. 13—Jitney drivers in Lawrence, received warning from Traffic Director Michael F. Barry that the slightest infraction of traffic rules will be considered cause for the revocation of license.

It will be unlawful hereafter to allow a passenger on a jitney, to stand on the running board of the machine, and only the capacity of the machine will be allowed in "loading."

Jitney drivers say that the new regulation will be a source of loss to them as the extra four passengers on the running board, on a trip to the suburbs, has made the jitney business worth while.

ASK MR. FIXIT

Mr. Fixit: Which uses the most gasoline a four-cylinder or a six-cylinder motor? I have had an argument over this and would like your opinion.

H. A. D., Boston.

This is a question more for engineers to discuss than for me. However, my opinion is such that is made must be made of motors which have nearly the same piston displacement and under identical conditions. A hook test is the only accurate way of determining this, and they should be practically equal under such conditions.

Mr. Fixit: I have difficulty in engaging my clutch and gears. Please tell me what to do to smooth up high gear.

Your clutch may spin or drag and cause difficulty, or if you have been overhauling your car you may have the shafts out of alignment. A good mechanic ought to determine this. If old models where the clutch and gears are not lined together this sometimes occurs.

Mr. Fixit: I have a battery and find that one of my cells needs more water than the others. What is the cause?

A. W. Waltham.

Your battery probably leaks. Take it to be repaired and in the meantime keep water above the plates.

Mr. Fixit: Please tell me what causes my motor to miss firing almost every other revolution. It is a single cylinder.

H. W. S., East Boston.

Your question is rather hard to answer. It may be several things. First look at your plugs. Sometimes a new one with a screw driver. If the motor slows down the plug is firing. If it does not the plug is dead. If you clean the dirty plugs this will probably cure you. What is the name of your car and your distributor may need cleaning.

Mr. Fixit: Please tell me how to overcome a rattle in my spring shackles. It is annoying.

H. W. S., East Boston.

Spring shackle play or looseness between the spring and the shackle bolt may cause much annoyance. Rattling caused by this looseness will be more frequent and distinct when the car is riding over fairly rough roads. A good method of taking up the play is to place shims between the spring and end the shackle of the play may be removed by tightening the spring bolt. Watch the shackles and do not allow mud to accumulate there and particles of glass-like substances in the mud will make their way to the working parts and cause excessive wear. Lubricate the shackle bolts well.

Mr. Fixit: I get caught in deep sand without chains or any more in front and had to be towed out. What could I have done?

J. H., Malden.

When a car is driven into a sandy spot in the road and the rear wheels spin, there is no end of attempting to extract the car with out assistance. The use of the wheels spin in sand the deeper the car will sink, and the more difficult it will be to pull it out. If no rope or burlap is in the car, deflate the rear tires and with the gears in first speed position engage the clutch slowly. If the does not start the car slowly pull back and start then behind the rear wheels. Then attempt to reverse and run the wheels over the rope. If rope or burlap is tied around the rear tires it will be found an easy matter to pull out of sand.

Dear Mr. Fixit: Do you advise using the engine as a brake? I have argued that it will not.

J. H., Malden.

The motor is one of the best brakes on your car. If you place the car in second speed at the end of long down hill and shut off the power. You have a very efficient and safe brake. You have a braking effect almost as enormous compression in each cylinder.

WINCHENDON WANTS SPEEDING STOPPED

Winchendon, Aug. 13—Residents of Spring street have started a petition which will be presented to the selectmen, asking them to take steps to end speeding by autoists on that thoroughfare.

Those who took out the petition say that 75 autos an hour have been passed for the speed fines to travel by.

AUTOISTS, BEWARE OF DARTMOUTH CONSTABLE

Dartmouth, Aug. 13—The town of Dartmouth has declared war on speed maniacs. Three men were arrested for driving their automobiles at excessive speed Monday night, and when they were arraigned in the district court in New Bedford were ordered to pay fines of $15.

Special constables will be sworn in, if need be, to insure rigid observing of the law.

Good Tube Is the Best Form of Tire Insurance

Few auto owners nowadays would be content without automobile insurance, yet how many there are who have no protection on their tires. This is such a thing as tire insurance, although many fail to see the protection in that light. The very best tire insurance in the world is a good inner tube.

Put inside your casing a tube that is dependable, one that will outlast the wear of the casing itself, and you have protected yourself against casing damage.

Good tubes cost no more than poor ones, yet many are prone to consider the tube as a necessary evil, an item of equipment that is worthy of only minor consideration.

The Fisk Rubber Company point to this foresight on the part of many motorists as the greatest source of needless tire expense. Twenty years of experience in the manufacture of tubes has shown them that pure para rubber is the most satisfactory material for tube making. Consequently the Fisk Company makes but one tube, that of the best grade of pure para.

R. C. GETSINGER TO HANDLE LINCOLN SALES

The appointment of R. C. Getsinger as sales manager of the Lincoln Motor Company is announced by Wilfred C. Leland, vice-president and general manager.

The Lincoln Motor Company was organized less than two years ago to build Liberty motors for the government. The organization is now being readjusted to manufacture and market a product which has been in development since the signing of the armistice in the fall of 1918.

The appointment of Mr. Getsinger is regarded as one of the important steps in this program. He will assume his new duties about September 1.

DERF
SPARK PLUGS

Conqueror of a Hundred Fields

No other spark plug has ever equalled the marvelous record made by the Derf. Time after time, in test after test, it has come out a proved victor.

Why? Because it is built on the best idea—the one big idea: a 360 point, circle-within-a-circle surface for sparking. Naturally there can be no miss fires—no failure to function from oil splashes, dirt or carbon. And the fat spark fires a leaner mixture, giving you 25% to 35% more mileage out of your gasoline.

All this has been proved. The Automobile Club of America and the Motor Truck Club of America proved that the Derf will save 25% gasoline; The Tower Motor Co., in an Overland Dependability run, proved that, for 7 days and 7 nights continuous run, the Derf never once missed fire. Packard Motors Efficiency test showed that Derf was the most economical as well as efficient. The N. Y. Herald-Government Fuel Economy test proved Derf the winner—not only in less fuel used, but it fired the car that won the hull climb!

What Derf Spark Plugs have done in these tests they will do in your car. You'll get the greatest satisfaction from using these plugs. Buy them today. $6.20 for four, $9.30 for six.

Stocks Are Strong in Both Markets During the Morning

STEELS FIRST IN UPWARD MOVEMENT

Oil and Equipment Issues Also Prominent in the Advance

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong at the end of the morning, but in most cases were below their forenoon highest. There was enough profit taking in the second hour to reduce the gains of most leaders. The market was more active than yesterday. First hour transactions totaled about 230,000 shares. The call was easy at 5 per cent. Concluding sensational oil of much significance stirred dealers. The price trend was upward from the outset, and fluctuations were of moderate range for the averages.

Steels led the upward movement, while only equipments were among the conspicuous groups. U. S. Steel was up at 97⅞, at noon. Its range had been from 96¾ to 97⅞. Crucible was up 2⅝ at 129½; Bethlehem B is at 87½; Republic Steel is at 89½ and Midvale at 72. Railroads had advanced 1¼ to 111¾. American Locomotive 2¼ to 85¾ and Railway Steel Spring 1¾ to 93.

Among strong stocks at 12 o'clock were American Linseed Oil, Woolen combines, Paper, Textiles, International Paper, Keystone Tire, Mexican Petroleum, Pan American, Sinclair, Texas Gulf, Studebaker, Stutz, Tobacco Products, Industrial Alcohol, U. S. Rubber and Texas & Pacific. They were rising from one to more than two points gain.

STEELS IN EARLY DEMAND.

Prices advanced at the opening and there were more buying by wire. Trading early in the previous session was largely owing to covering of shorts. Early in the forenoon shortages were beginning to work had a reassuring effect upon speculation. The public is slowly venturing back into the market. The early demand for steels and equipments was marked and they were leaders in the forward movement. Oils were another strong group. Interest opening gains were led by Crucible, Baldwin, Bethlehem B, International Harvester, Hudson and Pullman, Texas Co. and U. S. Rubber. They all advanced a point or more on the opening transactions. Coal and Pondero was a weak issue. Gains were fractional in most instances. During the forenoon the market had about the same aspect as yesterday. It was quiet and steady.

PRICE TREND UPWARD.

The upward trend continued upward throughout the first hour and advances were the rule later in the morning. After the opening the demand for stocks during this period were Railway Steel Spring, Retail Stores, Studebaker, Keystone Tire, Mexican Petroleum, American Woolen common, Central Leather, International Paper, Pan American, Republic Steel, Tobacco Products, Union Pacific and Texas and Pacific. The call was unchanged at 5 per cent. Time money was firm. Rails advanced a little as a class. Speculation was confined chiefly to industrials and oils. After overnight orders were executed the market passed into professional hands and the volume of trading circles was more cheerful. It is maintained by some operators that the upward movement has not gone long and that the market will be as active soon as over. The short interest is now far extended.

MURPHY SECOND IN COMMAND OF SECRET SERVICE

W. C. Tucker, Acting Chief During Moran's Absence, Transferred to New York

Washington, Aug. 13.—Several important changes in the personnel of the United States Secret Service were announced today. Joseph Murphy, for some years head of the White House detail, which has complete charge of the protection of the President, becomes assistant to William H. Moran, permanent chief of the bureau.

Murphy is one of the best known of the Secret Service operatives, having been stationed at the White House ever since the incumbency of the late President Theodore Roosevelt. Before that Murphy had a splendid record as a general operative in the service, having been responsible for solving several of the biggest puzzles encountered by the department. His services are called in just at the time when the system is about to be given an important part in the running down of the food profiteers.

W. C. Tucker, who acted as chief during the absence of Chief Moran protecting President Wilson in Europe, and who has been acting chief of the bureau for several months, is transferred to New York to succeed the late Captain Jack Henry, who was head of that important district until his death last January. Tucker is to have as one of his aides there John L. Sullivan, formerly of the presidential guard here.

Richard Jervis, formerly assistant to Murphy and also a veteran of Roosevelt days, has been named assistant chief of the White House detail. Jervis has been on constant detail at the White House ever since the time of President Roosevelt, and has been responsible for the advance arrangements for all presidential trips since that time. Edmund W. Starling of Kentucky, who has been at the White House since President Wilson was inaugurated, has been named his assistant.

EAST BOSTON MAN SHOT IN CHASE

Malindy, twenty-two years old, of 9 Neptune road, East Boston, is lying at the East Boston Relief Hospital from wounds in the abdomen and his assailant, Salvatore Daddario, thirty, of No. 86 Chelsea street, East Boston, is in a serious condition from bullets fired by a policeman during a chase following the shooting of Malindy.

According to the police, Malindy and Daddario only recently returned from France, became involved in an argument with Daddario on Everett street, near Cottage street, East Boston. Daddario, it is alleged, stabbed Malindy in the stomach.

Daddario fled down Everett street to Orleans, followed by a crowd.

Police were sent on a hurry call. Patrolman Michael J. Hafey chased Daddario into the house at Orleans street, where he had fled to the roof. As the policeman attempted to get onto the roof the police say that Daddario threatened to shoot him. Hafey drew his revolver and fired one shot toward Daddario, who fled. A chase across several roofs followed.

Daddario took desperate chances in his flight, jumping across long wide gaps between houses in an attempt to escape off the officer. He was finally cornered on the roof of No. 84 Meridian street, where Hafey alleged he made a move toward his back pocket.

A DISCOVERY THAT BENEFITS MANKIND

Two discoveries have added greatly to human welfare.

In 1855 Newton originated the vacuum process for condensing milk with cane sugar to a semi-liquid form.

In 1883 Horlick at Racine, Wis., discovered how to reduce milk to a dry powder form with extract of malted grains, without cane sugar.

This product HORLICK named Malted Milk. (Name since copied by others.) Its nutritive value, digestibility and ease of preparation (by simply stirring in water) and the fact that it keeps in any climate, has proved of much value to mankind as an ideal food-drink from infancy to old age.

Anyone Now Can Have Pretty Curls and Waves

Here's a new curling secret that is decidedly "worth while." At bedtime apply a little liquid silmerine with a clean tooth brush, drawing this down the hair from root to tip. In the morning when you look in your mirror you will be astonished and delighted to find your hair has dried in as beautiful curls as you've ever worn. The waves will look so natural no one will guess it was artificially acquired.

You can obtain liquid silmerine at any drug store and a few ounces will last a long time. It is very clear, thin, and greasy and is pleasant to use. It is doubly useful because of also serving as a beneficial dressing, keeping the hair soft, silky and lustrous. After one trial you will never go back to the barbarous curling iron. Advertisement.

PRAISES GIFTS OF THE LATE STEEL KING

Andrew Carnegie One of God's Noblemen, Says Former Guide

Lenox, Aug. 13.—Alone in a punt, Mark Bourne fished in Big Pond, Stockbridge, today and thought of his dead friend, Andrew Carnegie.

"Mr. Carnegie," said Mark, just after landing a two-pounder, "was one of God's noblemen. He was my friend and the friend of the world at large. Oftentimes he told me of his desires to benefit mankind. Time and again he related to me the hardship and handicaps under which he worked to secure an education.

"And having secured one, and with it wealth as well, he had decided to do his bit toward lessening the task of the young men of the world today. His libraries were an obsession almost akin to his desires for world's peace. Well do I recall the different times he discussed them and the plans he spoke of.

"Mr. Carnegie was an enthusiastic fisherman and he delighted to read of his efforts with the rod and line.

"His secretary, Mr. Poynton, subscribed to a clipping bureau and whenever a story appeared in which Mr. Carnegie figured as a flapperman he never failed to tell me of it and to tell me of the sometime exaggerations.

NEVER GOT $25,000 CHECK.

"I was always well paid for my efforts with him but not quite so much so as some of the writers would have one believe. I recall that following our first season on the lake there appeared, in a New York paper, a story that he had presented me with a check for $25,000 when he left Lenox at the end of a season.

"That story attracted worlds of attention and one night when I arrived at home for supper there was a fellow awaiting me in an automobile. He greeted me and at once asked for a story from me regarding Mr. Carnegie and the $25,000 he had given me for guiding him during the summer season.

"Needless to state I set him right as regards that point. Mr. Carnegie used me right, but he never gave me the sum of money Lewis alleged he did.

"The successes of the American armies cheered him, for he saw in them the overthrow of militarism and hopes of having his great ambition realized.

"Particularly was he cheered when reports came of the brilliant shooting made by the lads from New England, New York and Pennsylvania.

"It was as though he had a personal interest in each and every one of them. As the season waned and as the German forces were being solidly pushed back, his spirits arose.

"I thought that when he came back this season he would be a rejuvenated man. But, alas, his years were against him. His health failed steadily and toward the end he was almost helpless physically, though mentally as bright as ever. His fishing trips this year were few and far between.

"Nevertheless I heard from him and enjoyed the few brief minutes we had together. He was a good man and a friend I enjoyed having.

A FRIEND OF ALL.

"Andrew Carnegie was a friend to all who knew him. He was a man among men, and in my own humble way I pray that the Lord will take him into his arms and give him the reward that is his due."

He gazed longingly in the direction of Shadowbrook, standing majestically on the hill, with its beautiful expanse of lawn and background of trees. The launch they had fished in together laid tied at the float on the Carnegie estate, never more to hold this peculiar pair on one of these ever enjoyable trips.

Bourne told the writer that he had others to fish with, that the crop of minnows seemed never ending, but that none of them would be to him as was Mr. Carnegie.

Making your own price—

When everyone is bewailing high prices, and finding it hard to meet them, the advantage of the Filene plan of separating the cost of merchandise from the cost of service shows up like a flash.

For, under the Filene plan, you have a chance to decide for yourself how much service you want to pay for. By paying cash for small purchases and carrying small packages you not only save the charge for those services, but you help stop little wastes, a big factor in expense.

Every store which gives so-called free delivery and charge service has to include the cost of maintaining those services in the prices of merchandise. This store has made a humble beginning in offering the customer the choice of how much service she wishes to pay for.

Filene values are due in part to this policy of separating the cost of merchandise from the cost of service.

AMERICAN SPORT SECTION

BROOKES AND PATTERSON SMASH OUT VICTORY

By FRED B. ALEXANDER.

At the end of one of the most ideal days for both players and spectators, four teams were left to fight for the privilege of challenging Tilden and Richards for the national doubles honors. Three American teams and one Australian survived the second day's play. The star match between Brookes and Patterson, Australia, and Williams and Washburn turned out as expected, again the Islanders, as at Newport, won in three straight sets, 6—4, 6—3, 8—6, the American team bitterly contesting the last set.

It might be said that the Americans were simply not good enough and that sums up the entire situation. Both Williams and Washburn deserve credit for the fight they put up, but the brilliancy of Patterson and the splendid serving and backing up of Brookes was ever too much for them.

Both Australians, with their great services and fine all-round offensive work, were on the aggressive throughout, and in the innumerable clashes at the net the percentage of points won by them on their fine work was excellent, Brookes particularly playing up to his surname in this style and also serving so well that he had to answer had a single weakness. Patterson's service and overhead smashing is all that has been reported, and his return of service, both forehand and forehand, was also better, though he of course makes many errors owing to his hard hitting and top spin he puts on ball.

The combination is ideal, being both safe and aggressive, and it is safe to say that defeats them will have to play very nearly perfect tennis. To this end in the first set Williams and Williams should be hard, perhaps Williams' slow twisting service as his flat but ball is not nearly as effective as in singles, but he got a good chance for placement. He always is coming in on his serve, and his tendency to volley is good, but where a slip in his forward would give him the ball, these two gave his opponents no chance for a kill.

WASHBURN CONSISTENT.

Washburn played consistently but, like Williams, was not up to his effectiveness through the better playing of the other side. One bright spot for the United States was the defeat of the Australian doubles team in five sets at the hands of Alexander and Voshell, who, by the way, throughout played more consistent tennis than their opponents, who defeated as the Americans were in the other match to bring down their colors, particularly in the second and third sets, where Alexander and Voshell took twelve straight games.

Voshell was easily the star of the four excepting for the first set, the fourth of which he practically lost. Alexander started very badly and the loss of the first set was due to his dropping his first serve and being unable to get his ground strokes working even in fair shape.

COMEY AND BUNDY WIN.

There was little to choose between Lycett and Thomas, who played the general orthodox English type of game rather than the more modern Australian. Lycett was probably weak on his low volley, which is a feature of service, while Thomas was a bit soft overhead in deep play. There were many errors of omission and commission in the match perpetrated by both teams, and the score of the American team, 6—0, 6—2, 7—5, 6—3, just about represented the match as it was played.

McLoughlin and Bundy won their match as they pleased, three straight sets, against Harris and Doyle. It is only fair to state that Harris was far from form, owing to an attack of grip and really had no business to play.

Today Brookes and Patterson and Alexander and Voshell meet, and Williams and Washburn fight it out, namely Johnston and Griffin and McLoughlin and Bundy. It is interesting to note that Comey defeated Brookes and Alexander were opposed six each to Mercur and Griffin.

He, in a doubles and a singles Davis Cup match, and the Australian had the edge in both, though they each went to five sets.

Play in the National Doubles Championship in Semi-Final Round

The national doubles championship tournament reached the semi-final stage on the courts of the Longwood Cricket Club at Chestnut Hill today, when the Australian wizards, Norman E. Brookes and Gerald L. Patterson, British champions, were pitted against Fred H. Alexander and R. H. Voshell, winners of the Middle States Championship. Norman C. Bundy, the Californian, was scheduled to start in the day's play by meeting William M. Johnston, of San Francisco, in the Northwestern section champs.

The way in which Brookes and Patterson disposed of the New England champions, R. Norris Williams and Watson M. Washburn, picked by many to be finalists, was a standard proof that at least this pair of the visiting Australasians have certainly not been overrated. Their first match, over one of the fastest courts Longwood ever has known, Brookes and Patterson disposed of their first opponents here in straight sets, 6—4, 6—3, 6—0. Their work in this was nothing short of marvelous, and with the veteran singles player Alexander, and his partner, Voshell, opposed today, a treat was in store for followers of the game.

SPECTATORS APPLAUD.

The traditional silence with which tennis is viewed by the galleries was shattered on this occasion by the crowds which jammed the stands of the championship court when gallery to restrain themselves and broke out into cheering and hand clapping time after time when sensational rallies and placement shots made the gallery forget itself. It was not thing to see such a thing was at a baseball or football game. If the leaders of the game encouraged more healthy enthusiasm it is probable that the sport would have following that it deserves.

Better team work on the part of the Australians undoubtedly had much to do with their victory. They played together as they had been doing it all their lives. Williams and Washburn are individually brilliant players, but do not always play together to the best advantage. Williams, while showing an improvement over his game of the previous day, was inclined to be erratic, and his periods of brilliance were offset by costly inaccuracies.

WASHBURN STEADIER.

Washburn, calm to the degree of giving the impression that he was bored with the whole proceedings, was the much more dependable player of the team, but was outplayed and out-generalled by the Anzac pair. In the spirited rallies that featured the hard fought third set, he was frequently drawn up close to the net, from which point he didn't seem to be able to place his shots. Patterson aroused much applause in this set when he slipped and fell but recovered himself and returned a ball dropped just inside a farther corner of the court.

Brookes is a skilful tactician, and the soft game is his forte. Patterson, the young partner, is also a star of the first magnitude, and the pair are now favored to contest the American title in the challenge round on Saturday, with the present champions, W. F. Tilden and the versatile Vincent Richards. The point score:

SOCIETY AT MATCHES.

Before the big match of the day was begun two other courts were occupied, and for some time the three matches were proceeding simultaneously, keeping the large and fashionable gallery on the move. Among the notables of the social world who attended the matches were Mrs. Jack Gardner and Miss Eleonora Sears.

Maurice E. McLoughlin, the erstwhile California "comet" who, with his partner, Tom Bundy, is attempting a "comeback," came through to the semi-final round by beating C. B. Doyle and F. H. Harris, winners of the Middle Atlantic Section, in straight sets, 6—3, 6—3, 6—2. The Californians have not yet shown their speed of other years and it was predicted before the match today that they have "shot their bolt." Both seem to be overweight.

The second pair of Australians, Randolph Lycett and R. V. Thomas, were eliminated in a match that failed to develop any tennis of a high-class character by the Alexander-Voshell combination. Thomas seemed much the better of the pair.

FAVORITES WIN IN GRAND CIRCUIT RACES

Philadelphia, Aug. 13.—Favorites came through in all four Grand Circuit races on the Belmont track. Owing to the soft footing slow times were made in all the races. Grace Harrison, driven by Sturgis, in the 2:06 pace, was the only horse to come through in straight heats. The other races were: 2:08 trot, Hollywood; 2:10 trot, The Jolly Landlord, and 2:13 pace, Harpel.

FRED GADMAN, ROXBURY CARDINALS. THIRD BASE.

Freddy Gadman, who holds down the hot corner for the Roxbury Cardinals is showing up well in the field and at the plate for his team. He is but in the sixteen-year-old class and are playing fine ball. Much of their success is due to the playing of Gadman at third base.

LANDIS MAY BE NEW HEAD OF BASEBALL

By W. S. FARNSWORTH.

New York, Aug. 13.—Organized baseball is about to receive a thorough housecleaning.

Sick and tired of the manner in which the present National Commission has governed the game, the club owners of both the American and National Leagues at a meeting today decided to make a drastic change.

The changes will be the appointment of Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis of Chicago, as supreme head of organized baseball.

It is barely possible that Ban Johnson, president of the American League, and self-styled czar of that organization, and John A. Heydler, president of the National League, will sit on the board, but their powers will be curtailed in short, they will simply be figureheads.

At the baseball meetings in this city last February the National League appointed William F. Baker of Philadelphia and William Veeck of Chicago, while the American League nominated Colonel Jacob Ruppert of New York and Frank Navin of Detroit as a committee to select a suitable man to succeed Garry Herrman as chairman of the National Commission.

OBJECTED TO TAFT.

This committee has finally decided that Judge Landis is the man to fill the position.

Within the next few days, perhaps before the week is out, the position will be offered to Judge Landis. Inasmuch as the leagues will most likely offer a salary of $50,000, there hardly any doubt that His Judgeship will accept.

Last Winter, when there was so much talk about taking the National Commission out of the reach of Garry Herrmann and Ban Johnson, Harry Frazee, owner of the Boston Red Sox, and Harry N. Hempstead, then president of the Giants, were in favor of placing the good old game in safe hands.

They asked William Howard Taft, the former President of the United States, to accept the position as chairman of the National Commission.

Mr. Taft agreed to accept the offer of Frazee and Hempstead if all of the big league club owners were agreeable to the plan. Inasmuch as was the idea of Frazee and Hempstead to make the supreme body of baseball a one-man affair.

MORE GAINST JOHNSON.

But Ban Johnson objected. He absolutely refused to have any of his powers, although every fan in the country and the other club owners wanted, and almost demanded, that Mr. Taft be put in charge of the baseball pastime.

Since that time, however, the club owners have come to realize that the game needs scouring.

So they appointed the above named committee to work out the scheme originally fostered by Frazee and Hempstead.

It was learned by the writer last night that Charles Comiskey, the owner of the White Sox, who is a visitor in our city, was the man to suggest the able Judge Landis.

Certainly there isn't a better man to lead organized baseball out of its present state of chaos than Judge Landis. He has been a staunch supporter of the national pastime for years, and with him as the supreme chief, the game is sure to prosper more than ever before.

BRAVES START SERIES WITH PIRATES

By NICK FLATLEY.

We [illegible] this afternoon, an entirely different and somewhat more successful game than was laid down on the green of the Braves' field. Instead of the usual pitching duel between Hersog and Arthur Nehf, there seemed to be a contest between Jesse Haines and Harold Causey have been.

The Braves have won five out of their last six contests and landed in the fifth actually showing signs of real confidence and hope and things look as though they had the power to have a bit to do with the standing of the clubs, although their sole record against the last place club of Pittsburgh and Brooklyn may be.

PICK HASSET SHOWN.

Pick hasn't hopped into the pastime yet being slightly injured. Chances are he will not be with much regularity as Johnny Hawkins is in good fettle, and has been hitting well since his return. Manager Herzog has his departure.

The Braves just now are very busy with their young talent in camp. They have half a dozen from the New England league, and one star in the Western Southern association, besides several others from the Western Southern association, who are looked for more Jack. Just how they started all the high priority expecting those on the Braves' roster to be regulars in their positions is a matter which is known when the season opens. Some claim that the Braves have a better team than the Giants, but others say the big contest will be won by a good athlete or two.

NEHF DIDN'T WIN.

Frazee [illegible] the club doesn't think for a moment that Nehf pulled his game today on purpose. Here's his [illegible]

"Nehf [illegible] no doubt, but he was [illegible] pitching. He has been [illegible] day, [illegible] them. I don't want [illegible] Cardinals or New York will be [illegible] arm. He [illegible] is fine [illegible] of fire us. Hell win as many games as Nehf would."

"There the Cooperstowner is the prospect. He had a bad arm contracted in the Spring which [illegible] another game or so until then. Murray didn't want to [illegible] As Mac said, it didn't [illegible] he'll be a very valuable [illegible] he should be a better pitcher than [illegible] everything that a pitcher needs and has had enough experience now to make use of it."

JONES REAL PLAYER.

"Further, John Paul Jones is a real ball player or he wouldn't be as good as he is in the International league, and the same goes for Tuthill, who is one of the peppiest catchers in the business. We needed some hitting and now we have it. The team looked better since the trades, and here's the answer."

And then, of course, we got a lot of money, and during a tight season that comes in very handy."

Which, when you think it over, is a mere of less sensible point of view. We could [illegible] New York club team that was being built up, but then, too, we [illegible] the Boston teams leading the races.

The Braves open a four game in three days series with the Phillies at 3 p. m. The double header comes tomorrow, and there will be another Saturday when the Cardinals are here. The season is on for fair, as the Cards and Braves likewise on it ages both Monday and Tuesday.

Viva America Sold.

Paris, Ky., Aug. 13.—Viva America, widely known racehorse, has been sold by his owner, Charles [illegible] ington of Danville, Ky., to [illegible] Nichols of this city, for a reported price of $10,000. It was announced here. Viva America won the Kentucky Derby in 1918, in two years old.

The list of events include 100 and 200-yard dashes, 440 and 880-yard runs, one mile run, three mile run, pole vault, running high jump, running broad jump, putting 16-pound shot, javelin throw and 120-yard hurdle race, with low hurdles, three and a half feet in height. BIKE STARS IN 35-MILE RACE AT REVERE

Forty-five miles of motor-paced racing, with a senior event of 25 miles and a junior race of 10 miles for features, will make up the regular mid-week card of races at the Revere cycle track tonight.

In the big motor-paced race Wiley, Madonia and Corry will have the call, and as several rich bookings depend on the showing tonight all three are sure to show their best. Wiley has fully recovered from his recent injury, while Madonia is still setting a hot pace on all tracks throughout the circuit, and Corry must not be overlooked, as the Italian champion is still at least one race to the bad in his contests with the visitor.

In the ten mile event the fans will see a new champion—although one of the old favorites at the beach—in John Pardig, who makes his debut as a motor paced follower. He will line up against Herbert and Bowker.

Three Marksmen Tied In Great American Handicap

Chicago, Aug. 13.—William S. Hoon of Jewel, Ind., F. J. Cairns of Tampa, Kan., and E. W. The marksmanship was of especially fine variety, only those scoring 97 or better sharing in the prizes.

Perilous Days in Olde Virginia

"Also during the spring of this same year one of the other planters of that settlement of the name of Fairleigh was attacked while turning over with the plough a piece of new land for tobacco. One of his horses was hit but, being a cautious man and having always his musket with him, he managed to drive the Indians off."

—Notes of a Planter

"Virginia tobacco tastes better" Test its taste and see!

We've been saying right along that Virginia cigarettes have a flavor, a zest, and a relish that smokers of other cigarettes miss entirely.

Now! Put Virginia tobacco to the Taste Test. Smoke a cigarette of Virginia tobacco, one made entirely of Virginia. Right afterward, smoke a cigarette of mixed tobaccos. The second cigarette will taste "flat" by comparison.

Make this test and you'll know why we keep saying, "Smoke Virginia tobacco straight—smoke the all-Virginia cigarette, smoke Piedmont."

The Virginia Cigarette

Piedmont

NOTE—Piedmonts, with all their taste-quality, cost less than cigarettes of foreign-grown tobacco which have to tack on the cost of import duty. If you want all value in place of part value, ask for Piedmont, the all-Virginia cigarette.

VALGER WINNER FROM PARKER ON POINTS

By JACK CONWAY

Ring generalship a tantalizing jab and effective mixing at close quarters enabled Benny Valger, New York lightweight to defeat Charley Parker of the south End in a six-round bout at Mechanics building yesterday afternoon before the fans of the Armory A. A.

The go was before Larry Connelly, and with the approval of the 4,000 fans who witnessed the bout, Valger had the best of the going in the third fourth fifth, eighth, tenth and twelfth sessions. The rest of the rounds were Parker's.

There were few idle moments from the time the men started until the dear old chimes sent the fighters in the direction of the exits at the end of the final stanza. Valger's masterful boxing and straight front mixing of the time but Parker's punch had his admirers out on the sidewalk up to the last minute of fighting.

PARKER FLASHED IN TENTH.

In the last ten seconds of the tenth session Parker showed what a great little fighter he is. He had Valger pinned against the ropes when Timekeeper Jimmy White said ten more seconds to go. The South End fighter stepped back and then started with a smashing left hand punch to the jaw. He followed with a right hook and a left uppercut that shook Valger's head. Valger rocked under the attack but managed to stay on his feet.

For the next few seconds there was some torrid fighting. Parker rapidly fell into the habit of walking in expectant body, working a short left and to ward off the boxer's blows.

Parker started fighting in earnest in the first session. He rushed Valger with a flurry of blows and sent him reeling with a short right to the jaw. Valger was buffeted around some in the first round and seldom got in a blow. Parker was wild and missed most of his punches.

ALL VALGER IN FOURTH.

It was in the fourth that Valger began to find the range of Parker's punches straighter. Parker was out-boxed in the fourth and seventh sessions. Valger connected with a right to the head that shook Parker. The latter was buffeted around by Valger's left hook and was forced to clinch frequently to save himself from punishment.

Valger came back in the eighth, ninth and tenth rounds and added up a margin in his favor. The round by which he defeated his opponent in the eleventh while the final session ended a Valger favor.

In the semi-final bout of eight rounds Young Cyril Delmont and Sam Bell of the south end fought to a draw. Both boys of Bell were [illegible] Mick Murphy of Lowell [illegible] Kid Lavigne of Chelsea heated Elias Rogers in six rounds.

How to Play Baseball

"This is the seventeenth of a series of 100 articles by Hugh S. Fullerton, celebrated baseball expert, on "How to Play Baseball." In this lesson Mr. Fullerton continues to tell how to become a base runner. These articles will be a feature of the American's sport pages each day. Don't miss them.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON

In scoring from third on a sacrifice fly, take a modified sprinter's start at the base, the left foot a foot and a half up the line, the right toe on the corner of the box, the body crouched forward for the start.

Keep the eyes on the ball and take no eye when the ball is about four feet from the hands of the fielder. You are supposed to wait until the ball is caught but in races no good runner waits it long. He times his start exactly at the instant when no umpire can decide whether he started before or after the catch.

Most certain that the third baseman is not in position to pick your lead or uniform so as to throw you off stride at the start.

Remember that when you are on bases you are the most important figure in the game and that every move of the team is to advance you.

Rely entirely upon coaches for duties. In Kane waste no time in looking around to see where the ball is.

In doing anything and all running starts. This is one, neglected by ball players. No matter how slow of foot you are practice will in time enable you to make a quick start and the start is the most important part of the art of running bases. The greatest base runners are not the fastest men.

Run out everything to the limit. The team that runs out every ball at top speed, no matter how slow of foot you are appears to have four men on the field. Loafing around to see where the ball is.

"Ireland Is an American Question!"

Six Powerful Articles

By Edward F. McSweeney

Explaining the racial, political and economic factors that lie under Ireland's fight for independence and the reason why America is vitally interested in the outcome.

Edward F. McSweeney has held many positions of responsibility and trust, Federal and Commonwealth.

His appointment by Justice Cohalan to the Advisory Committee of the Massachusetts Branch, Friends of Irish Freedom, stamps him as closer in touch with the Irish Cause than any other person in New England.

Beef and "Pep"

Beef is the Body Builder.

There are few foods that put such pressure behind human energy.

Nothing is more savory than a cut of fine, juicy beef.

How many ever think of the months and years of effort that have gone into the making of this healthful food.

Producers have given years to improvement of breeds of cattle in order that your piece of beef may be more juicy and tender.

There is no substitute for beef.

Easy of digestion, its life-giving properties promote growth and stimulate appetite.

New vim and vigor are imparted to growing children.

The worker has his labor-worn tissues replaced by beef.

"BUDDIES" IS A PLAY OF OUR BOYS

By FRED J. McISAAC.
Dramatic Editor.

When "The Better Ole" was having its tremendous success all over the country last season, a good many of us who attempted to tell a secret wish that it was not our army whose exploits and foibles were so amusingly described.

And along comes George V. Hobart and gives us a play called "Better Ole" which we fain declare.

And the American "Better Ole" is a better one than the English one. It is an Ole we believe it, go to the Park Square and see "Buddies."

Joseph has had his curious little combination of farce melodrama and sentiment produced where a mixed American doughboys are marching home after the armistice waiting for the ship.

The setting has given him a very convenient one. Donald Brian, once a successful Broadway Widow, now a private in Buddies, Wallace Ldl., forgets that the original Little Lord Fauntleroy was a girl, and Peggy Wood becomes one of Marshall Field's second best beaux. And musical comedy, head the company.

By the way "Buddies" can be witnessed without annoyance by any ex-member of the Expeditionary Force. There isn't a commissioned officer in the entire show. No epaulets or shoulder straps visible.

During the course of the evening there are two musical numbers contributed by Melville Gideon and R. G. Knowles. These are invariably brisk, melodious and not impudently ensemble like so many recent scores now being. Fairy Tales," comes close to being a classic.

Peggy Wood, whose versatility was exhibited by her triple role in "Maytime," demonstrates it still further by playing a sweet little French girl whose action is almost always beyond reproach. Donald Brian is called upon for more legitimate dramatics work than his nimble feet have before, and he exhibits unexpected gifts for light comedy. Wallace Eddinger, one of the most dependable and expert actors in the business, carries most of the comedy as an excessively bashful lover.

The eight soldiers in the squad are ingeniously contrasted types of American while the French people are done by the little group of French folk who were so successful in "Over There" and in "The Crowded Hour," last season's biggest war play.

There isn't any war atmosphere in "Buddies," not as much as in "The Better Ole." It's just a cheerful jumble of atmosphere, created by Yankee soldiers in French village, and it's well worth seeing.

Sen. Thomas' Remarkable Confession Regarding Political Parties

Senator Thomas of Colorado, discussing the "Plumb Plan" on the floor of the United States Senate, made this remarkable statement:

"It may become necessary for both political parties to unite in saving the republic instead of struggling and scheming to get votes."

This is the most astonishing confession in the history of American politics. Senator Thomas says that nothing separates the Republican and Democratic parties but the personal yearnings of their respective leaders for personal office holding. However much of a shock this may be to the country at large, the bald statement did not cause a ripple in the Senate. No senator leaped to his feet to challenge Senator Thomas. The truth of his extraordinary admission was evidently so much a matter of course in the leadership of the two great parties that these leaders seemed to have forgotten that the nation at large might still believe that occasionally one party or the other sincerely stood for progress and the expression of the people's will.

Readers of the Hearst newspapers will escape to a certain extent the general astonishment that must follow Senator Thomas' confession. The Hearst newspapers have over and over again pointed out this manifest truth to their readers in past national campaigns.

Where before there existed only more or less cynical suspicion, there will now be angry conviction. There is no longer any doubt. Senator Thomas has entered for both parties a general plea of guilty to the charge that both parties have served a common and secret master and that the only struggle between them is for votes to determine whether the servitors in office shall be labelled Democrats or Republicans.

Since the Civil War there has been very little difference between the Democratic and Republican parties except on rare occasions. Democracy in the South was clearly a local question. General Hancock, the Democratic candidate for President, said that the tariff was a local question when asked what his views were concerning the tariff. Many people laughed at him for this statement. But the Republican and Democratic members of Congress in the formulation of tariff measures have given ample evidence that General Hancock was not so ridiculously wrong as a great many people were inclined to believe.

The parties fought over the tariff on election day and then if the Republicans won the Republican trusts made a tariff that pleased them and displeased the Democratic trusts. And if the Democrats won the Democratic party in Congress raised the tariff on the goods in which the Democratic trusts were interested. And those trusts were Democratic trusts which bet that the Democrats were going to win, and, therefore, made most of their campaign contributions to the Democratic party, and the other trusts were Republican trusts because they bet that the Republicans were going to win and made most of their contributions to the Republican party. And those trusts which were always in power were those trusts which hedged on their betting and contributed equally to both parties.

The American quoted President Wilson the other day as follows:

"The masters of the government of the United States are the combined capitalists and manufacturers of the United States. It is written over every intimate page of the records of Congress; it is written all through the history of conferences at the White House."

Of course, President Wilson was right then, even if he has changed his opinion now.

These big business interests which control the country and which are now working hard to compel the Americans in the Senate to abandon their Americanism and to ratify the League of Nations and the Treaty of Peace are Democrats while the Democrats are in power, and Republicans when the Republicans are in power. As Jay Gould once said when he was asked what party he belonged to, "Oh, I am a Democrat in a Democratic county and a Republican in a Republican county." These gentlemen take good care to be strong always on the stronger side, to be always riding on the band wagon, holding the reins.

It took a new party to settle the issue of toryism against democracy in 1800, and to destroy for 100 years the power of those who passed the Alien and Sedition laws muzzling the tongue and press of American citizens. It took a new party to destroy human slavery in America and to cleanse the constitution and make it square with the high principles of the Declaration of Independence. It looks now as if it will take a new party to re-establish democracy upon the basis of the new order of the day and again destroy the power of those enemies of democracy who are responsible for the continuance of the new set of Alien and Sedition laws now called the Espionage laws.

Agricultural and labor groups are springing spontaneously into political expression. Senator Thomas' frankness will give them new energy. The Committee of Forty-eight, which from its headquarters at No. 15 East Fortieth street, New York, has issued a call for "a conference of liberals," has met a response from the nation that probably astonished its promoters as much as Senator Thomas' confession must have astonished them.

The millions of voters who agree with Senator Thomas are rapidly finding ways to express their agreement. The senator and his bi-partisan friends, now happily relieved of the necessity for keeping up the pretence of being enemies, need not concern themselves about saving the republic. There are plenty of indications that the citizens of the republic have at last determined to move with energy and understanding to save the republic themselves—FOR THEMSELVES.

Two Good Selections

There are two events of interest to local politicians this week, one is the appointment by Mayor Peters of M. W. Burlen, Chairman of the Election Commission, and the other is the selection of Daniel T. O'Connell as the executive at the headquarters at Washington for the freedom of Ireland.

Mr. Burlen has seen nineteen years of continuous service on the Election Board. His services won the reappointment for him from every Mayor during these nearly twenty years. That speaks a volume.

Mr. O'Connell's ability as an executive is pretty well known to the citizens of Boston. He has vigor and industry and a general ability which have made his selection no mistake.

The American earnestly hopes that his work may be successful for the sake of his cause.

More Truth Than Poetry

SIMPLE SIMON

By G. E. KISER

SIMPLE SIMON played the races,
And was filled with vain regrets;
Wise young men with smiling faces
Told him how to place his bets.
With no money left whatever,
Simon, walking homeward, swore:
"I have learned my lesson! Never,
Never, never any more!"

SIMPLE SIMON saved each penny
That he earned by daily toil;
Then, one day, he read how many
Men were getting rich in oil.
Smith and Jones and Brown and Meyer,
All were sudden millionaires—
Simple Simon took a flier,
Loading up with ten-cent shares.

YOU have guessed the truth; they flimmed him
In a game as old as Time,
And refused, when they had trimmed him,
To hand back a single dime.
Simple Simon fumed and fretted,
Howled, in fact, till he was hoarse,
But the folly he regretted
Could not be undone, of course.

SIMPLE SIMON, plunging blindly,
Bought a patch of weeds one day;
Fate looked on his venture kindly,
And a city moved that way!
When they'd handed millions to him,
Simple Simon, stepping high
And with proud thrills passing through him,
Said: "How wise a man am I!"

OUR OVERWORKED PREACHERS

Clergymen are beginning to want an eight-hour day. As far as the golf players are concerned, they may have it, with Sundays off in addition.

ONE IS ALWAYS CROSSING YOUR PATH

There is use for the watch on the wrist,
And feathers help some kinds of hats,
But why do people insist
On filling the world with black cats?

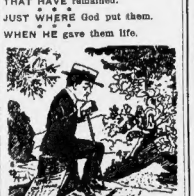
OUT IN the country.
JUST AT dawn.
I ALWAYS wake.
AND LIE quite still.
WHILE INTO my ears.
COMES THE morning song.
OF ALL of the birds.
AND WITH it.
FROM A great wide field.
ACROSS A lake.
COME MUFFLED tones.
OF BELLS.
THAT MARK the path.
OF WANDERING cows.
AND LATER on.
I RISE.
AND LOOKING down.
MAY SEE ground squirrels.
GO HOPPING by.
WITH WINTER food.
AND THEN.
I DON my city clothes.
AND ON the highway.
JOIN THE rush.
OF HUMAN things.
IN LITTLE cars.
AND GREAT big cars.
AND CITY streets.
COME RUSHING out.
AND PICK us up.
AND LEAD us in.
AND DUMP us out.
AND LEAVE us there.
WITH THOUSANDS more.
WHO RUN about.
LIKE ANTS at work.
AND NEWSBOYS come.
AND IF you've time.
YOU BUY their wares.
AND READ of riots.
AND STREET cars stoned.
AND BEATEN men.
BECAUSE SOME man.
DECLINED TO talk.
WITH OTHER men.
WHO RUN the cars.
AND TURN a page.
AND SOMEWHERE else.
YOU FIND the news.
THAT THEATRES.
HAVE CLOSED their doors.
BECAUSE OF quarrels.
THE ACTORS have.
WITH MANAGERS.
AND TRAILING on.
BEHIND THIS news.
ARE OTHER strikes.
AND OTHER quarrels.
AND RACIAL riots.
AND NIGHT time comes.
AND CITY streets.
LEAD COUNTRYWARD.
AND YOU go back.
AND IF you've time.
YOU MAY sit down.
AND WONDER.
IF THE human race.
JUST KIDS itself.
WHEN IT assumes.
IT HAS more sense.
THAN BIRDS.
AND SQUIRRELS.
AND COWS.
AND ALL those things.
THAT HAVE remained.
JUST WHERE God put them.
WHEN HE gave them life.



I THANK you.

GIRLS MUST NOT FEAR BUSINESS SHADOWS

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow

IT is a big world and every human being in it is dreaming his or her own particular pet dream. But the strange part of it is that every one sees it in a different way, for each is building his own world.

To some it is temporarily heaven; to others it is temporarily hell, for it never stays either, continuously. One person finds the country a haven of rest and peace; to another it is a dreary waste, separating him from the world of action for which he longs. One finds the city a relentless prison, and another stretches out his arms to it and cries, "Oh, beautiful city of opportunity!"

And this proves that it is all mental, not only our view of it, but the thing itself.

A girl who has confided in me by letter begins by saying she is twenty years old, and ends by signing herself "Despondent." And between these two statements are sandwiched the reasons for her despondency.

Fails on Big Things

These in her own words have been so far, "A failure to convert nature's crude product—a wilderness—into the land of successful enterprise."

She says: "At present I call myself a stenographer, and as far as the mechanical end is concerned I can truly say I am competent. I can turn out business letters that elicit praise from my employers and others, but unfortunately writing letters is not the only requirement to filling a business position satisfactorily. At least, every position that I have had so far was a combination of clerical work and stenography, and usually more of the clerical work.

"I would call myself a secretary but for the fact that I cannot handle any important question that presents itself, no matter how hard I try. I have concentrated, thought and dreamed over these important questions, but only with the result that I have had to turn the matter over to my employer unfinished, or perhaps if I did handle it in a presumably satisfactory way, something would come up to show that the action I had taken was unwise.

"So I have come to the conclusion that I am no business woman and never shall be, and that the only qualification I have for holding down a stenographic position is the ability to compose letters."

There is certainly no especial reason for despondency in this. It is hardly to be supposed that a girl of twenty would be able to conduct satisfactorily all the important matters in her employer's affairs.

It is never worth while in taking stock of ourselves to waste much time on our liabilities. The principal thing to do is to make the most of our assets.

To be twenty years old is an incalculable asset, and to be able to write straight, clear business letters is another—a very valuable one—and third, to have "the land of successful enterprise" as a goal is a glorious third. It is a stunning phrase. The girl who coined it is very clever in expressing herself even if she cannot put through a business deal successfully.

Mentality Must Master

That impatient, ambitious spirit of hers, her dissatisfaction with present conditions, indicates energy; and it is the energetic who accomplish. But so long as energy expresses itself merely in dissatisfaction, it is wasted. You've got to make it turn the wheels of your various mental mills.

Another thing—the world takes us at our own valuation. Don't permit it to make that valuation a cheap one.

MAKING THE MOST OF A MARRIAGE BARGAIN

By Winifred Black

DEAR WINIFRED BLACK:

I have just a few minutes in which to tell you my story. When I was younger and saw things in the movies that somewhat resembled my career, I could not believe such things were true, but nothing seems impossible to me now.

At twenty I am a bitter, married woman. Five months ago the boys used to call me "Sunshine." Now I look like an advertisement of gloom. I married a fellow who told me he had everything in the world to give me and that he was old enough to take care of me. In four months I have learned that you don't know a man until you live with him. It has turned out that he is much younger than me, hasn't a cent to his name, is only holding a small position in an office and has the stingiest disposition imaginable. I am not the only one that has found this out—all our friends and acquaintances know it. I haven't even a home, so now I am leaving him to go back to my people.

My religion does not allow a divorce. I cannot ask alimony of him, because he would not be able to give it to me.

Winifred Black, what is the matter with the boys of today? They cannot and do not want to take any responsibility upon their shoulders. I love my husband, but I do not think that a lying, selfish, lazy boy will ever be a worthwhile man. When I was ill I had to pay my doctor's bill out of my own money, which is so very little, and he went around talking about the doctor's bills just as though he was paying for them.

I have given him two years in which to make good, and if at the end of that time he doesn't show any good results I will obtain a divorce, regardless of everything.

What would you advise? Sincerely, A CONSTANT READER.

WHAT is the matter with the boys of today, Constant Reader?

One thing that's the matter with them is the girls of today.

At twenty you are a bitter, married woman, are you? Well, that's what you may think, but I think that at twenty you're a foolish little girl, who has been entirely too much to the movies.

What if he did tell you he had everything in the world to give you? He probably thought he had.

He's nothing but a boy, and doubtless he hadn't the faintest idea what real living really costs.

Two Sides to It

Stingy? How can he help being stingy when he has only a very little money? A man can't be a riotous spendthrift on ten or fifteen dollars a week.

And as to his awful crime of being younger than you, there'll come a time some day when you will be the one to wish you were the younger yourself. Youth is a great advantage, my dear, not a disadvantage, as you seem to think. So you love your husband, do you? And yet you call him a lying, selfish, lazy boy.

How could he pay your doctor's bill if he didn't have any money?

What do you call making good—being honest, steady, reliable, energetic, loyal, faithful to you, and kind?

Or, when you say you will give him two years to make good, do you mean that you will give him two years to make a fortune, as she here in the movies does in two weeks?

What did you expect when you married him? You must have known that he was no millionaire, you foolish little girl you.

Why don't you go home to your own people and live a while? Let him make his own way, and at the end of two years see whether you are woman enough and he man enough to live together in something like real marriage.

Make the Most of It

Marriage is not play, my dear; it's serious business, and you should have thought of all these things before you rushed carelessly into such a situation.

I'm sorry for you, and I'm sorry for your boyish husband, too, poor fellow. Can't you and he love each other well enough to face it together and see what you can make of it?

It seems to me that would be the best way, after all. Come—you loved him when you married him; call back the old love and when he comes into the door of your heart again, have a little common sense there to be company for him.

Youth, love, trust—why, they're the only things on earth that are worth while. Don't fling them lightly away on account of a little quarrel over money, and the advice of meddlesome friends.
